Come learn about the symbiotic relationship between supporting pro-housing political candidates and growing your business. We've all heard the saying "A rising tide lifts all boats." In housing, the tide is shaped by the pull of elected officials. The more successfully our industry supports pro-housing candidates, the more housing opportunities we should have. And the more opportunities there are to build housing, the more work there is for everyone.

A shining example is Nichole Weinman and Rita Mahoney, two rockstars of the Industry. Come hear how Nichole's decision to engage in the politics of housing has led not only to more business, but incredible relationships that will withstand economic downturns. And how Rita's projects benefited from the support of Nichole and JAAM Electric.
