Building Tour

Take an exclusive look into the future of SDSU Mission Valley. The site plan prioritizes an “open space first” design philosophy and fully integrates access to the trolley and other forms of public transportation. Grounded in environmentally sensitive planning, the development enhances and celebrates the San Diego River while creating extensive open space for the broader community. The plan includes more than 80 acres of trails, parks, green spaces, and recreational fields—representing over 50 percent of the total site area.
